DECOWOOD GARAGE DOORS

Design Innovation

There are many factors working against using timber in buildings, causing it to age prematurely and become expensive for the home owner to maintain.

Exposure to sunlight fades the colour of the wood, regular sanding and staining becomes costly and time consuming. Splitting and rotting are inevitable.

It really does look like timber.

It's hard to imagine a timber finish like this could be anything but the real thing. That's because we use a unique manufacturing process to create durable marine grade powder coating and an incredibly natural three-dimensional timber finish on high quality steel. Unlike timber, DecoWood Garage Doors won't warp, shrink, splinter or rot. They require little maintenance*, and unlike the trees that were saved to create your DecoWood Garage Doors, they are also completely impervious to termites.
